Business of the Month

Everyone thinks a truck is a truck, but really we're an extension of what our customers and clients are trying to accomplish, said Vince Tarantini, president of the Carmen Transportation Group. Good shipping and good service is a balancing act between a number of considerations, and years within the business along with the quality leadership of a father who paved the road before him, has led Tarantini to the successful Emery Village business he runs today. "We're trying to get goods to market," Tarantini said, breaking down the basics of his business.

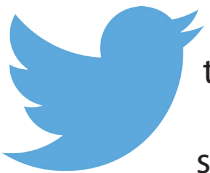

"What do you need? How do we get that there and be sensitive to your need? Is it timing? Is it equipment on the truck? Is it staging? Is it trailer pools? Do we need to work with people on receiving end? All of these can be considerations.
